Supplier News - January 2021

Avoid Successive Price Submissions for Same Price Set

You can edit a price set, for List Price in any currency as well as a Private Price for specific customer/contract, anytime using appropriate price submission. Be aware that if you create successive price submissions for a given price set that get processed simultaneously, it might cause issues.

For a given price set:

- If you realize that a price file had incorrect values, be sure to close submission with such file before you create a new one with corrected file
- If you create a 'Price – Update/Add' type submission, be sure to let it finish (or close it) before you create a subsequent 'Price – Replace All' type submission

This will ensure that two submissions in process are not trying to edit a product price, in the same price set. You can have simultaneous price submissions for multiple price sets, either via a separate price submission for each price set OR a single price submission with multiple price sets. In such case, any given price set is being edited in a single price submission.

Product Images – an Important Product Attribute

We support over 1100 product attributes so that you can provide very detailed product information to buyers, for a diverse range of products. Whether they are glassware, equipment, clothing, office supplies, consumables etc., if there is one single product attribute that makes the most impact, it is product image. While the other product attributes help provide detailed specifications to buyer, product image greatly helps a buyer make a purchasing decision.

You can provide web link to a product image using the Image URL attribute. Be sure that it points to just the product image itself and not a page that has other details along with image. You can readily load this product attribute as part of your catalog content and edit the link if needed any time.

Since this is such an important attribute, we provide a qualitative analysis of up to 2% of most common Image URL values in your catalog in the Data Completeness Report (DCR). The DCR is generated 3 times a year and is a great way to keep an eye on overall quality of your hosted content.
